GUYAU, Marie Jean The Non-Religion of the Future [(badly) tr.] $3 8° Holt, N.Y. 97
17/– n. Heinemann. After examining Theism, Atheism, Pantheism, Idealism, Materialism, and Monism, maintains that religion, so far as not emotion, is a symbolic accounting for truths discovered by our ancestors, and that this accounting is disappearing as science more and more occupies the field. It then reconstructs society without religion, reaching very definite conclusions.

$1·50. New Amsterdam Bk. Co., N.Y. The story of a modern French man-of-letters, flung upon the full tide of Parisian materialism and sensuality, finding himself, when over forty, irresistibly attracted to Roman-Catholicism. It brings home with rare force and simplicity the inevitableness of the greatest realities of religion for certain temperaments.

ILLINGWORTH, Rev. J. R. [H.-C.] Personality, Human and Divine [Bampton Lectures 1894] 8/6 ($1·75) 8° Macmillan 94
Deals with the argument for the existence of God, from the point of view of the 'Establishment of the Christian Faith' and 'Confutation of all Heretics and Schismatics'—for which purpose the Bampton Lectures were founded. The familiar arguments, teleological and other, are freshly and forcibly stated, and the use of evolutionary theories is a distinguishing feature of the lectures.

INGE, Dr W. R. Truth and Falsehood in Religion 3/6 n. c 8° Murray 06
$1·50 Dutton, N.Y. Six Camb. lects., presentg. Xty. as the natural culminatn. of developmt. of religion, emphasizing the need o doctr. (in partic. the Logos doctr.) as a link betw. Chr. theol. and spiritualistic Monism.

LINDSAY, Jas. The Progressiveness of Modern Christian Thought 6/ p 8° Blackwood 92
The most important chapter of this excellent work was expanded sub tit. Recent Advances in Theistic Philosophy of Religion [ut A § 4], which see.

LOISY, Alf. [R.-C.] The Gospel and the Church, tr. Chr. Home 3/6 c 8° Isbister 04
A reply to HARNACK [ut sup.]. Disputes H.'s definition of the essence of Christianity, holding that we cannot learn fr. the Gospels what that essence is, containing as they do only the germs of Christianity, not Christianity itself, wh. arose only after the Resurrection, and has been evolved since in the history of the Roman Catholic Church. Sets small store by the historical value of the Gospels, and boldly states that his own Church does not realize the philosophy of her own history.

MALLOCK, W. H. Religion as a Credible Doctrine [$3 n. Macm., N.Y.] 12/ 8° Chapman 02

,, The Reconstruction of Belief 12/ n. 8° Chapman 05
Dismissing the methods by which religion has hitherto been defended (philosophical as well as theological) as fundamentally wrong, presents a new apologetic based on the argument for religion that is derived from its practical value as a civilizing agent, and on the view that experience shows that religion in some sense is necessary to the normal man. The Third Part criticizes the case for scientific agnosticism, and demonstrates that chance has no real existence, and, as an explanation of the universe, is the least tenable theory—thus refuting Haeckel and the scientific monists. Cf his novel The Veil of the Temple, wh. (more lightly) covers much the same ground.

RENAN, Ern. The Future of Science: ideas of 1848 [tr. (badly)] 18/ 8° Chapman 91
$2·50. Little & Brown, Boston. A sort of apologia pro vita sua: a fascinating self-portraiture of a genuine truth-seeker, a perfect specimen of what the Greeks termed a Skeptic, i.e. a man who has a natural distrust of dogma, or finality in speculative subjects of all kinds. 'I have tasted in my childhood and early youth the purest joys of the believer, and I say from the bottom of my heart that these joys are nothing by comparison with what I have felt in the pure contemplation of the Beautiful and the passionate search after Truth. I desire for all my brethren who have remained orthodox a peace to be compared with that in which I live since my struggle is over, and since the appeased storm has left me in the midst of this great Pacific Ocean—a sea without wind or storm, upon which one has no star but Reason, no compass but one's own heart'.

Former [Eng. & For. Philos. Lib.], $2; latter, 60 c., Open Court Pb. Co., Chicago. In the earlier work the author, a confirmed Darwinian, analysed and rejected the ordinary teleological arguments for the existence of a God: in the later, wh. consists of notes for a Candid Examination of Religion (never completed), he took an opposite view, finding in the order of Nature itself evidence of a Creative Mind. $6. Macmillan, N.Y. Vol. I deals w. the assumptions of modern science respecting the universe; vol. II w. the relation of mind to matter in the individual. The whole is a learned and scholarly endeavour, through a criticism of modern scientific dogma, to prove that theological postulates are not only possible but necessary: all theories, naturalistic and otherwise, imply mind prior to mechanism in any possible conception of the individual: nature and man are one in being rational, and the common distinction between subject and object is a form of speech, not a philosophical reality. Self-realization is thus the key to all life, and the psychic process in the individual consists in assimilating the non-ego to the ego, and the ego to the non-ego.

This essay, by the author of the term 'Agnostic', which he invented as a name for his own opinions and those of the school to which he belonged (above all of HUME and to a great extent of KANT), throws much light on Agnosticism as a philosophical method. 'Agnosticism is not a creed, but a method, the essence of which lies in the rigorous application of a single principle. . . . Positively the principle may be expressed: In matters of the intellect follow your reason as far as it will take you without regard to any other consideration. And negatively: In matters of the intellect do not pretend that conclusions are certain which are not demonstrated nor demonstrable' (p. 362).

*FRAZER, Dr J. G. The Golden Bough: study in magic & relig., 3 v. o. p. [pb. 36/ n.] r 8° Macmillan [90] 00
The much-enlarged Second Edn. of this invaluable and famous work, wh attempts to explain the rule of succession to the priesthood of Diana at Aricia, by the comparative method, throwing much light on some obscure or neglected facts in primitive religion, espec. amongst the early religion of the European Aryans. In some sense it is a developmt. along the lines first laid down by W. MANNHARDT, in his Wald-u. Feldkulte, 2 vols. [i: Germanic; ii: Anc. Nations], 24 m. 8° Bornträger, Berlin 75–6, and Mythologische Forschungen, and other wks.; but of much farther-reaching influence on the attitude of the human mind tow. supernatural beliefs and symbolical rituals, applying as it does the principle of evoln, to relig. creeds and observances, and attribg. a natural, in place of a supernatural, origin alike to sacraments and to idea of piacular sacrifices.

" The same, 3rd edn., Pt. IV: Adonis, Attis, Osiris 10/ n. ($3·25 n.) 8° Macmillan 07

Deals exhaustively and comparatively w. the 3 deities of agric. or vegetn., Adonis (= Tammuz, worsh. at Babylon and in Cyprus), Attis (Phrygian counterpt.), and Osiris (Egyptn.). In this edn. further attention is paid to the nat. features of the countries, as religion is, in author's opin., so profoundly influenced by physical environmt.

* " Lectures on Early History of Kingship 8/6 n. ($2·75 n.) 8° Macmillan 05

HAUPT, Prf. Paul [ed.] Sacred Books of the Old Testament 4° Hinrichs, Lpz. 93 in prg.

The Amer. edn. is pub. by Johns Hopkins Univ. Press, Baltimore; the Engl. agent for the ordinary edn. is Nutt, fr. the Ed. de Luxe Luzac & Co. A polychrome, critical edn. of the Hebrew text, w. notes; 'the Higher Criticism in colours'. The first attempt at a systematic revision of the entire Hebr. Scriptures since the Massoretic text was fixed in 6th century. It embodies the assured results reached by modern scholarship, as regards both actual wording of documents and assignment to definite periods. Blue, green, and red inks are used for the various documents to indicate (1) parallel compositions, (2) polemical interpolations, (3) correcting interpolations—in Job conforming the speeches of Job to the spirit of the orthodox doctrine of Retribution. The critical notes are short and to the point, and the bibliogr. references exhaustive. The use of colours to indicate var. docums. in a Biblical bk. is not new : it was introduced by Prf. BÖHMER some 35 years ago.

" tr. Rev. J. Hamlyn Hill, s.v. The Earliest Life of Christ ever compiled from the Four Gospels 10/6 8° Clark, Edin. 94
An English tr. (the first that appeared) of the Diatessaron, made fr. CIASCA'S Latin version, compared w. the Arabic, together w. a tr. (by Prf. Armitage ROBINSON) of the portions of the Diatessaron embedded in EPHRAEM'S Commentary, a historical and crit. Introduction, an account of TATIAN himself and his commentators, and an estimate of the value of the wk. for criticism and exegesis of the Gospels. Valuable Appendices. The whole gives, perhaps, a clearer idea of the work of TATIAN than any other available bk. The Diatessaron is also tr. by H. W. HILL in the Ante-Nicene Lib. : Addit. vol., pp. 35–138 [ut A § 55].

Argues clearly and forcibly (and somewhat dogmatically) that the Gospel has markedly the character of an independent history drawn from sources similar to those of our four Gospels, but varying ; and that the four Gospels—tho' contemporary—were not known to the writer of this Gospel —thus dissenting from the view taken by the more orthodox commentators. Author is W. R. CASSELS.

WILDEBOER, Prf. G. Origin of Canon of the O.T. [tr. fr. Dutch] 7/6 r 8° Luzac 95
Edited by Prf. G. F. MOORE. A historico-critical investigation, turning on the significance which is to be attached to the term 'canonical' as used in the Jewish Synagogue, and showing very clearly that the real touchstone of canonicity for O.T. books was the Tora (by EZRA [B.C. 444]), wh. is the unique authority for the Jews. It carefully examines the historical evidence concerning the canon in the O.T. itself, in Jewish literature, in the N.T., in Palestinian-Jewish sources, and in the Fathers.

ROBERTS, Prf. Alex. Greek, the Language of Christ and His Apostles 18/ 8° Longman 88
Seeks to show that Greek was the language habitually used by Christ in His public teaching; and that the Septuagint was the 'People's Bible' in Palestine.

,, A Short Proof that Gk. was the Lang. of Christ 2/6 c 8° Gardner, Paisley 93
The 'short proof' is substantially that Christ in his discourses commonly appeals to the Scriptures as writings with wh. he and his hearers are familiar, and that, as a matter of fact, neither the Hebr. orig. nor any Aramæn version of it was in the hands of the people at the time. What they had was the Greek version, the Septuagint.

Ea. vol. $2 Randolph, N.Y. Orig. pubd. by Kegan Paul at 10/6 to 15/ (red. 1897 sqq. to 6/) per vol. Gives Introductions; divides the text into paragraphs supplying e.t. para. with an exposition ; to this are added a comprehensive sermon-outline and homiletic suggestions. The Introds. are by Archd. FARRAR, late Bp COTTERILL, late Prc. TULLOCH, Can. RAWLINSON, Dr A. PLUMMER, and Rev. W. J. E. DEANE.

The Expositions comprise textual criticism, revised where thought desirable, explanation, apologetics, and archæological references. These and the homilies are by about 100 contributors.

o.p. [pb. 24/ to 30/ ea.] i 8° Murray 71–81

In 1863 the Speaker of Ho. of Commons consulted w. several Bishops as to production of a high-class Commentary, chiefly with a view to defending the Scriptures agst. 'the attacks of modern sceptics', the immediate cause being the pubn. of Essays and Reviews [1861] and COLENSO'S Pentateuch [1862 sqq.], with the result that the then Bp. of York organized a plan and committed the editorship into the hands of Canon COOK. [COLENSO replied in New Bible Commentary by Bishops, etc., Examined, 25/ 8° Longman, 71–3.] The work has never been very highly esteemed, and is superseded. It is strictly evangelical : contains no express homiletic matter.

The N.T. is far the better in point of scholarship. The notes are suggestive and sometimes important, tho' the good bishop discovers 'miracles' where no one else would suspect them, and constantly ventilates his theories of 'apostolical succession' and 'sacramental grace'. His information as to patristic interpretations of O.T. is valuable.

ADAMS, Rev. Myron [Cong.] The Creation of the Bible $1·50 c 8° Houghton, Boston 93
6/ Gay. A summary of the results of the Higher Criticism: follows KUENEN and WELLHAUSEN, rejecting Mosaic authorship of Pentateuch and regarding Genesis as largely mythical (not composed until Babylonian exile).

ADDIS, Rev. W. E. [Unit., ex-R.-C.; tr. & ed.] Documents of the Hexateuch, newly tr. and chronolog. arranged, w. Introd & notes, 2 vols. o.p. 8° Nutt 93–8
Vol. i: The Oldest Book of Hebr. History; ii: Deuteronomical Writers and the Priestly Documents. The different strata of the documents are distinguished by separate printing, similar in object to KAUTSCH + SOCIN, infra. Contains a good statement of the GRAF-WELLHAUSEN theory. The tr. is careful and scholarly.

ASTLEY, Dr H. J. D. Prehistoric Archaeology and the Old Testament 5/ n. 8° Clark, Edin. 08
[Donnellan Lects. 1906–7.] Its main object is to show that the authority of Christianity, the Church, and the sacraments is independent of a literal acceptance of the O.T. traditions.

BAXTER, Rev. W. L. [Ang.] Sanctuary and Sacrifice: a reply to Wellhausen [Bible Student's Library] 6/ 8° Eyre & Spottiswoode 96
A minute criticism of the 66 pages in WELLHAUSEN's Prolegomena, which deal with 'The Place of Worship' and 'Sacrifice'. Starting fr. wholly different axioms, the argument mainly consists in refuting what WELLHAUSEN never asserted, and proving what WELLHAUSEN never denied. The book is in its way scholarly (though occasionally abusive), and its comprehensive survey of the historical books has value.

DILLON, Prf. E. J. Sceptics of the Old Testament: Job, Kohelet, Agur 7/6 8° Pitman 95
Regards the writers of Job, Eccles. and the sayings of Agur (Proverbs xxx) as sceptics who 'emphatically deny that there is any proof to be found of the so-called moral order in the universe, and unhesitatingly assert that existence is an evil. All three reject the dogma of retribution, the doctrine of eternal life, and the belief in a coming Messiah, over and above which they at times strip the notion of God of its most essential attributes'. With a new English tr. of Job and Ecclesiastes.

84 Whittaker, N.Y. [Bampton Lects., 1889.] Marked a new epoch in English Psalter-criticism, tho' its results had been practically a settled matter for a long time in Dutch and German schools of Biblical criticism. Assigns the whole Psalter to the post-exilic period (w. the doubtful exception of Ps. xviii), towards establishing wh. conclusion 5 out of the 8 lects. are devoted. A thoroughly scientific, yet reverent, exegesis, examining the whole Psalter, group by group, psalm by psalm, almost verse by verse, in a sound apologetic manner.

To occupy 3 vols. A remarkable bk., by a devout Jewish scholar, presentg. to his fellow-Jews a fresh tr. and comm. on the Synopt. Gospels, insistg. on the importce. for them of studying the life of Christ. 'Taken all in all, it seems prob. that Jesus was not the conscious founder of the Chr. Ch. He was and meant to remain a Jew. He wanted to purify, to quicken, to amend, but not to break away and make a fresh beginning. His Kingdom of God, fr. one pt. of view, was a reformed Judaism. Possibly it may come to pass that in his teachg. there may be found a reconciln. or meeting-pt. betw. a Reformed or Liberal Judaism and a frankly Unit. Xty. of the distant future. That Judaism and that Xty. may find that they differ in name, in accent, and in memories rather than essentially or dogmatically. That Judaism and that Xty. may both claim Jesus as their own'.

STRAUSS, Dav. Friedr. [Rat.] Life of Jesus, tr. 'Geo Eliot' [1848]; w. Introd. Prf. O. Pfleiderer
15/ 8° Sonnenschein 92
Still of great value: makes good some points beyond the possibility of refutation, and shows that the Synoptics are irreconcilable with the Fourth Gospel, that the narratives of the Infancy in the 1st and 3rd Synoptics are hopelessly at variance with one another, and that the discrepancies between some other narratives of the same alleged occurrences are such as to seriously discredit them all. Whilst seeking to explain the life of Christ on purely natural grounds, the miraculous elements being regarded as myths which have accumulated round a kernel of fact, he maintains that the eternal substance of Christianity remains unaffected by the demolition of its historic basis. See also note to the book in A § 50.

Ea. $3 n. Putnam, N.Y. i: Sources, and Hist. to death of Joshua; ii: Sources, and Hist. to Babylonian Exile. Not a history of the Jews, but careful and honest discussions of the limits and character of the sources, and of the inferences to be drawn fr. them, carried on with an earnest desire not to deviate more than is absolutely necessary from tradition. Interspersed with the criticism, of which the book mainly consists, are some brief sketches, the best being the Introduction, wh. contains an account of the land of Israel and its inhabitants. KITTEL is usually called Conservative, but this must be taken in a relative sense: on the whole his conclusions are in harmony with those of the critical school.

A lucid, well-written and well-ill. work on O.T. archæology, bringing together a mass of interesting material with ingenious and happy suggestions. Six chapters: (1) Introductory, (2–5) minutely compare the Biblical accounts of the Creation, the Fall, the antediluvian patriarchs, and the Deluge (espec. Chaldean account) with what the monuments (espec. the Tell el Amarna tablets) teach us, (6) deals with 'The Grave and the Future State'. Preface contains a good statement of the attitude towards the Higher Criticism and its results wh. recent discoveries are forcing on the archæologist.

As Others saw Him: a retrospect, A.D. 54 6/ c 8° Heinemann 95
An anonymous attempt to sketch the life of Christ as it might have appeared to an intelligent and dispassionate contemporary—a rabbi who at the date of the events described was a teacher in Jerusalem, and when he wrote his account 20 years later was settled in learned society at Alexandria as a member of the Sanhedrin and of the Council of Twenty-three who voted for the sentence of death. Thoroughly sympathetic and as far as possible undogmatic. In suggesting sources for the ethical doctrine of Jesus special stress is laid on the supposed relation with HILLEL

STRAUSS, D. F. [Rat.] Life of Jesus Critically Examined [tr.] 15/ 8° Sonnenschein [46] 98
$4·50 Macmillan, N.Y. Tr. by George ELIOT, the novelist. Repr. of a tr. of a bk. wh. marked an epoch on its first appearance in 1835. Attempts to explain the life of Christ on purely natural grounds, the miraculous elements being regarded as myths which have accumulated round a kernel of fact, its theory being briefly known as 'the Mythical Theory'. It will always hold a place as a classic in the literature of Christology, being as it is the link wh. connects the old school of rationalism, whose methods were always destructive, with the modern school of constructive criticism. Prf. Otto PFLIDERER adds an interesting Introd. to this edn. [v. also note on the bk. in A § 33.] It is a remarkable fact that LANGE and KEIM successfully filled the theolog. chair in Zürich, to wh. STRAUSS had been called in 1839, but of wh. he was deprived by the vigorous protest of the people of the canton.

$3·50 Macmillan, N.Y. A somewhat showy, ill-digested, and rhetorical treatise—half homily, half handbook; showing how great paintings illustrate both the character of their painters and the religious sentiment of their age, thus illustrating the ever-changing phases of Christian opinion. Earlier part of the book (the best) gives a fairly good summary of primitive Christian art, early symbolism, and Christian painting, in the Catacombs, the older Roman churches, the Ravenna mosaics, and other monuments of first or semi-classical period, but consciously glosses over the heathen elements.

An inquiry into the value and accuracy of the received portraiture of Christ's face. The 1st ed. was in large folio, and is worth about £3. The portraits (however great or little their authenticity) are of much interest as examples of early Christian art of 2nd to 3rd cent.

LOWRIE, Rev. Walt. The Church and its Organization in Primitive and Catholic Times : The Primitive Age 14/ n. ($3·50 n.) 8° Longman 05

A learned and stimulating interpretation of Rud. SOHM's Kirchenrecht. Tho' amorphous in method and without style, of great historical value for Christian origins. Regards the organization of the Primitive Church as 'charismatic', not legal, i.e. dependent on the recognized inspiration of individuals, not on the constitution of society. As soon as it became legal, Catholicity (in the author's view a degradation) began. Further, author reverses the notion that the episcopate developed from below, strongly separating bishops from presbyters, even in N.T. times. An interesting part of the bk. shows how the development of Christian govt. and architecture, no less than its worship, proceeded fr. the organization of the Eucharistic service.

SLATER, Rev. W. F. [Wesl.] Faith and Life of the Early Church 7/c 8° Hodder 92
A fairly critical, though not quite adequate, introduction to study of the Primitive Church. Its chief characteristic is its exposition and defence of the view that Catholic Xty. was the result not of an amalgamation or reconciliation of contending parties (as commonly held) but of the triumphs of Gentile Xty. It is to some extent a defence of Wesleyanism agst. Roman and Anglican claims. WEIZSÄCKER's and PFLEIDERER's theories are incisively criticized.

*RAMSAY, Sir W. M. St Paul the Traveller and the Roman Citizen; map 10/6 Hodder [95] 97
Practically a commentary on Acts, so far as it exhibits the career of St PAUL, the development of Christianity and the extension of the Christian religion in the Roman Empire. Thorough in scholarship, ardently seeking the truth, independent in expression, and exhibiting a rare knowledge of Asia Minor, and originality. The author's working hypothesis is that Acts is the work of a great historian [St LUKE], strongly partizan (but not partial), his omissions being the result of deliberate design and meaning much: he considers LIGHTFOOT'S conception of LUKE as a second-rate historian to be 'an inconceivable phenomenon'. Cf. also his Church in the Roman Empire [ut sup.].

FROUDE, J. A. Lectures on Council of Trent [del. at Oxon. 1892–3] 3/6 c 8° Longman [96]

$1·50 Scribner, N Y. A very vivid acc. of early hist of Reformation movement on the Continent, out of which the Council grew; 3 chaps. only (out of 13) deal with the proceedings of the Council itself, and the 2 last w. the continuation of these proceedings after the Council had removed (or, as FROUDE says, fled) to Bologna, so as to be under the Pope's immediate protection. The author's attitude to the Fathers in Council, to the Pope and to the Papal policy of the time is of course the same as that of his Hist. of England: he believes the Reformation was inevitable, that it was a revolt of the laity agst. the corruption of the Church and the oppression of the eccles. powers. The work is in the main controversial, and its facts are not all trustworthy; but its style is inimitable.

50 c. Dutton, N.Y. An accurate and close, yet smooth and easy tr., the best among about a dozen others. The bk. was written during its author's imprisonment at Pavia under sentence of death on a false charge of conspiracy agst. Theodoric. It is a colloquy between BOETHIUS, and PHILOSOPHY, who visits him in prison and makes him tell his story, and then endeavours to raise him fr. his dejection. It is a moot point as to whether Boethius was a Christian or not, but there is no doubt that the voice which speaks is a real, individual voice, and that the form of the bk., the happy alternation of prose and verse, its fine imagination and rhetoric, secure it a permanent place.

Syrian Church in India

RAE, Prf. G. M. The Syrian Church in India; 6 pl. 10/6 p 8° Blackwood 92
A scholarly wk. on orig. and annals of a Christian Church, neither Roman nor Protestant, founded 14 or 15 hundred years ago in India, and likely to remain only as a curious survival among other and more modern missionary enterprises. Author believes that neither St Thomas nor St Bartholomew, who, since times of Jerome [4–5 cent.] and Gregory of Tours [6 cent.], have been credited w. foundation of the Church there, ever visited India, and that the Syrian Ch. in India was an offshoot in 6 cent. fr. the Nestorian Ch. of Persia.

OLIPHANT, Laur. — Scientific Religion: higher possibilities through operation of natural forces 16/ 8° Blackwood [88] 88
A new system of 'spiritual materialism', asserting that physical, mental, and emotional forces are all material, that their manifestations are conditioned by the varieties of which they consist, and of endless combinations and 'fermentations' wh. may be produced by these atoms. There are thus 'joy-atoms' and 'pain-atoms': will is an aggregation, love a perturbation, and worship a current of atoms. Immortality depends on strength rather than on virtue or vice, and, as the latter 'weighs more', the wicked sink into nonentity, whilst the good rise continuously. A curious book, not without much suggestion, and written by a most capable littérateur—first two parts said to have been written under inspiration of late Mrs OLIPHANT, an inhabitant of the spirit-world.

96: UNIVERSALISM

[Believers in the ultimate salvation of all mankind, good and bad alike. The sect was founded by JAS. KELLY, a Unitarian minister, in middle of 18th century. The American sect originated with John MURRAY, an English Wesleyan, who emigrated in 1770, and there the Universalists have established themselves prosperously as an independent body, numbering in 1862, 1000 congregations.]

Tr. by F'r G. TYRRELL of the Ital. 'official' reply to the Encyclical (wh. is given in a Suppl.): wr. by Modernist-Catholics for Catholics, but repudiated by the Church, the authors having been excommunicated. Of great interest to all Christians as gathering together in brief space assured results of Bibl. and histor. criticism, and seeking to reconcile them w. a faith higher than logical methods, wider than 'facts'—a philosophy of life based on man's experience as a whole.

Purcell, Edm. Sheridan Life of Cardinal Manning, 2 vols. ; ports.
30 / n. ($6 ; ch. edn. $3·50) 8° Macmillan [95] 98
Vol. i: Manning as Anglican ; ii: M. as Catholic. A very candid narrative, wh. caused great offence to the R.-C. party and Manning's friends. The story of Manning's relations w. Newman is fully told, and is not pleasant reading for the admirers of either. The strongest impression that remains to the outsider after reading the bk. is one of wonder at 'how these priests suspect each other'. In his lifetime the Card. gave PURCELL every assistance in prep. of the biogr. (incl. loan of the diary he kept at Rome 1847–8), and his exors. later allowed him access to all letters and papers under their control.

NEWMAN, Card. Jno. Hy. [1801–90]—v. also A § 76*

Letters and Correspondence of Newman during his life in English Church, ed. Anne Mozley, 2 vols. 7 / c 8° Longman [91] 98
With a brief Autobiography up to 1833 (ÆT. 1874, which sketch, with these Letters and the Apologia, completed the period of his Protestant career). The Autobiogr. is written in the third person ; and the edr. of the Letters, who was chosen for the purpose by NEWMAN himself, is a Protestant. 'It has ever been a hobby of mine, though, perhaps, it is a truism not a hobby, that the true life of a man is in his letters . . . not only for the interests of a biography, but for arriving at the inside of things, the publication of letters is the true method. Biographers varnish, they assign motives, they conjecture feelings, they interpret Lord Burleigh's nods ; but contemporary letters are facts'.—J. H. NEWMAN.

Immaculate Conception

CARMICHAEL, M. Francia's Masterpiece 5/ n. c 8° Paul 09
An essay on the beginning of the Immac. Conception in art. Just as WYCKHOFF has thrown a flood of light on Giorgione by discovering passages in late Gk. and Lat. poets wh. the painter intended to illustrate, so CARMICHAEL shows by the example of Francia and his picture how the great painters were influenced by scholastic theology, and how their symbolism is to be interpreted thereby.

Patrick, Rev. J. The Apology of Origen in reply to Celsus 7/6 c 8° Blackwood 92
A sound monogr. on ORIGEN'S answer to (now lost) treatise of CELSUS agst. Xtianity, charging it w. being dangerous to State. Gives argumts. on both sides, forming a very conven. digest of the whole controversy. A good ch. shows rel. betw. Xty. and the Empire, and the vol. conts. a tr. of greater pt. of CELSUS' True Word. Author disagrees w. KEIM'S opin. that the CELSUS of ORIGEN was CELSUS the Epicurean known to LUCIAN.

$5 n. Scribner, N.Y. Tr. of Der Inhalt der Lehre Jesu, an important contribn. to bibl. theology. The Introd. to vol. I summarizes results of his heretical analysis of text of Gospels, and rest of wk. rigidly adheres to scheme there outlined. The 'results' (briefly stated) are that there are 3 Apostolic 'sources' or authorities underlying our present Gospels: (1) Mark's Gosp., (2) the Matthew discourses, ed. in 2 forms in 1st and 3rd Gospels, (3) the Johannine discourses, ed. in 4th Gosp. by a post-Apost. writer. [The reasons for this crit. anal., appearing in the orig. wk., are not tr. in the Engl. edn.] The author's acc. of the Teaching of Christ as a whole—of its 'unity, consistency, moral depth and grandeur', ii, pp. 389–97—is not materially affected by his critical results.

$10·40 n. Scribner, N.Y. i: The Supernatural Birth, 7/6 n.; ii: The Life-Token, 12/ n.; iii: Andromeda; Medusa, 7/6 n. A learned and very comprch. study of a myth in wh. author sees well nigh all the essential elements of supernaturalism. Vol. i deals w. the mass of legends of miraculous fecundations, of wh. that by Zeus (who, metamorphosed into a golden shower, fertilized Danae so that she gave birth to Perseus) is a type; vol. ii deals with what in folk-lore terminology is called 'The Life-Token', i.e. that barbaric confusion wh. makes all that belongs to a man, both externally and internally, an integral part of the man himself. A vast number of parallel illustrations are given, and the anthropolog. interpretn. of their meaning and origin is supplied.
